In Outlining His Plan Wilson Wants

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—President Wilson told the threatened railway strike before Congress today in an address to both houses assembled in joint session. He spoke in part as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Congress: I have come to you to seek your assistance in dealing with a very grave situation which has arisen out of the demands of the employees of the railroads engaged in freight train service that they be granted an eight-hour working day, safeguarded by payment for an hour and a half of service for every hour of work beyond the eight."

"The matter has been agitated for more than a year; and came three weeks ago to a final issue and resulted in a complete deadlock between the parties. The means provided by law for the mediation of the controversy failed, and the means of arbitration for which the law provides were rejected. The representatives of the railway executives proposed that the demands of the men be submitted in their entirety to arbitration, along with certain questions of readjustment as to pay and conditions of employment which seemed to them to be either reconsideration on their own merits, or absolutely declined arbitration, especially if any of their established privileges were by that means to be drawn again in question. The law in the matter put no compulsion upon them."

"Just as soon as it became evident that mediation under the existing law had failed and that arbitration had failed and that arbitration had been rendered impossible by the attitude of the men, I considered it my duty to confer with the representatives of both the railroads and the brotherhoods, and myself offered mediation, not as an arbitrator, but merely as spokesman of the nation in the interests of justice; indeed as a friend of both parties, but not as judge, only as the representative of 100,000,000 men, women and children who would pay the price."

"It seemed to me in considering the subject matter of the controversy that the whole spirit of the times and the preponderant evidence of recent economic experience spoke for the eight-hour day. It has been adjudged by the thought and experience of recent years a thing upon which society is justified in insisting as in the interest of health, efficiency, contentment and a general increase of economic vigor. The whole presumption of modern experience would, it seemed to me, be in its favor whether there was arbitration or not, and the debatable points to settle were those which arose out of the acceptance of the eight-hour day rather than those which affected its establishment."

"I therefore, proposed that the eight-hour day be adopted by the railway managements and put into practice for the present as a substitute for the existing 10-hour basis of pay and service; that I should appoint, with the permission of the Congress, a small commission to observe the results of the change, carefully studying the figures of the altered operating cost, and also the conditions of labor under which the men worked, and the operation of their existing agreement with the railroad, with instructions to report the facts as they found them to the Congress at the earliest possible day, but without recommendation, and that after the facts had been thus disclosed, an adjustment should in some orderly manner be sought of all the matters now left unadjusted between the railroad managers and the men."

"I unhesitatingly offered the friendly services of the administration to the railway managers to see to it that justice was done the railroads in the outcome; I felt warranted in assuring them that no obstacle of law would be suffered to stand in the way of their increasing their revenues by the means the expenses resulting from the change so far as the development of their business and of their administrative efficiency did not prove adequate to meet them. The public and the representatives of the public, I felt justified in assuring them, were disposed to nothing but justice in such cases and were willing to serve those who served them."

"The representatives of the brotherhoods accepted the plan, but the representatives of the railroads declined to accept it." must at any cost to themselves or to the country stand firm for the principle of arbitration which the men had rejected. I based my counsel upon the indisputable fact that there was no means of obtaining arbitration."

"I yield to no man in firm adherence, alike of conviction and of purpose, to the principle of arbitration in industrial disputes; but matters have come to a sudden crisis in this particular dispute and the country has been caught unprovided with any practicable means of enforcing that conviction in practice (by whose fault we will not now stop to inquire). A situation had to be met whose elements and fixed conditions are indisputable. The practical and patriotic course to pursue, as it seemed to me, was to secure immediate peace by conceding the one thing in the demands of the men which society itself, and any arbitrators who represented public sentiment were most likely to approve and immediately lay the foundation for securing arbitration with regard to everything else involved. The event has confirmed that judgment."

"Having failed to bring the parties to this critical controversy in an accommodation, therefore, I turn to you, deeming it clearly our duty as public servants to leave nothing undone that we can do to safeguard the life and interests of the nation. In spirit of such a purpose, I earnestly recommend the following legislation:

"First—Immediate provision for the enlargement and administrative reorganization of the Interstate Commerce Commission along the lines embodied in the bill recently passed by the House of Representatives and now awaiting action by the Senate; in order that the commission may be enabled to deal with the many great and various duties now devolving upon it with a promptness and thoroughness which are with its present constitution and means and action practically impossible."

"Second—Establishment of an eight-hour day as the legal basis alike of work and wages in the employment of all railway employees who are actually engaged in the work of operating trains in interstate transportation."

"Third—The authorization of the appointment by the President of a small body of men to observe the actual results in experience of the adoption of the eight-hour day in railway transportation, alike for the men and for the railroads; its effects in the matters of operating costs in the application of the existing practices and agreements to the new conditions and in all other practical aspects with the provision that the investigators shall report their conclusions to the Congress at the earliest possible date but without recommendations as to legislative action, in order that the public may learn from an unprejudiced source just what actual developments have ensued."

"Fourth—Explicit approval by the Congress of the consideration by the Interstate Commerce Commission of an increase in freight rates to meet such additional expenditures by the railroads as may have been rendered necessary by the adoption of the eight-hour day, and which have not been offset by administrative readjustments and economies, should the facts disclosed justify the increase."

"Fifth—An amendment of the existing federal statute which provides for the mediation, conciliation and arbitration of such controversies as the present by adding to it a provision that in case the methods of accommodation now provided for should fail, a full public investigation of the merits of every dispute shall be instituted and completed before a strike or lock-out may lawfully be attempted."

STRIKE CALLED LABOR DAY

Formal Order Issued by the Brotherhoods to Prevent Legal Interference That Might Be Attempted to Prevent Such Action; Crisis is Grave.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Direct negotiations between the railroad executives and the employees through President Wilson were practically closed today when the executives refused to accede to a proposal made there yesterday by Mr. Wilson, and presented to him a statement of their position containing another argument for arbitration."

The statement presented to President Wilson by the committee of eight leaders, that the judgment of society favors an eight-hour day and declares that arbitration is the only proper way of settling industrial disputes."

The suggestion of President Wilson for a proposal including the principle of the eight-hour day, but postponing its effectiveness for a year pending investigation, was rejected by the railroad executives at the conference this morning. The action of the railroad presidents, taken in connection with the strike order of the employees, left President Wilson no alternative but to go to Congress in a final effort to avert the strike by legislation."

While President Wilson was announcing that he would lay the railway strike situation before Congress at 2:30 o'clock today, the brotherhood leaders rejected the latest proposition of the committee of railway presidents and actually ordered the strike to begin at 7 A. M. Labor Day unless a settlement satisfactory to them is reached in the meantime."

Their previous order for the strike was tentative and required a secret signal to put into effect. Unless a settlement satisfactory to the labor leaders is reached before that time or unless President Wilson and Congress find some way to prevent it, the strike would start Labor Day without further notice."

The labor leaders admittedly took their action the first thing today in the belief that some means was being sought to prevent the strike actually being called. By their action they think they have anticipated any legal processes which might be brought against them."

Brotherhood leaders, it was understood today, would fight the compulsory investigation feature of President Wilson's legislative program, but support his eight-hour proposal."

Every effort will be made, it was said, to get separate votes on the proposition in Congress and leaders were confident that could be done. A. E. Garretson, spokesman for the men, expressed himself as strongly opposed to the compulsory investigation plan and while it is not entirely approved, the proposed eight-hour bill, he said, would bring benefits to such numbers of non-union men that the railroads doubtless would oppose it, and he thought the brotherhoods would be behind it."

"The Canadian compulsory investigation plan," he said, "has proven the greatest thorn in the side of the men for years. Invariably, and I speak from experience in dealing with railroads, the railroads have used this delay guaranteed them by law, to prepare for a strike."

"The eight-hour day proposal failing to carry as it will, of course, any reference to wages would not embrace our present demands, and not be wholly" satisfactory to us. It would have the effect, however, of bringing the unorganized 80 per cent of railway labor, of which the railway heads speak so fondly, under an eight-hour day. It would be a step in the right direction and I think you would find the railroads opposing it vigorously."

In order to have any effect on the present proposed strike the President's legislative program would have to pass both Houses and become a law before next Monday morning. Once the men have left their trains, compulsory investigation would not affect them in the opinion of brotherhood officials. The officials declined to discuss this phase of the situation further."

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Health Officer George Hetzel notified managers of the moving picture houses that children under 16 must not be admitted. Signs were immediately posted above the ticket booths notifying the youngsters that they were prohibited from seeing the shows "until further notice."

There were quite a few children in the theaters at the time of the health officer's visit, but these were not excluded, remaining until they had seen the pictures. Last night the rule was strictly adhered to."

The order is not a popular one with the kiddies. Not a few admittedly under 16 fought tickets on the strength of the fact that they looked over 16. The number of children who stood in front of one movie house gave it the appearance of an indignation meeting. No new cases of infantile paralysis have developed in Fayette county, notwithstanding the rumors that cause

Court Holds Tierney Has Right to Ascertain Value of Coal Properties.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Aug. 29.—Overruling and dismissing the defendants' motion to quash the alternative writ of mandamus because of want of jurisdiction on the part of the Fayette county courts, Judge E. H. Reppert this morning handed down an order in the petition of Laurence E. Tierney for a writ of mandamus to allow him to examine the books and papers of the Indiana Ridge Coal & Coke company and the Zenth Coal & Coke company, in which the court caused to issue a peremptory writ of mandamus upon Walter Kilpatrick, former president, and J. A. Armstrong, former secretary and treasurer, of the two coal companies, to Tierney, with his clerk of clerks, access to the books and papers of the companies, with the opportunity of making excerpts therefrom."

The plaintiff claimed that on January 20, 1916, he received from Armstrong a certificate for 50 shares of United Pocahontas and $1,978.55 for his Indian Ridge holdings and $4,635.50 for his Zenth stock, but that he returned both the stock certificates and the checks, because he had no knowledge of the true value of his holdings in the Indiana Ridge and Zenth corporations. He sought permission to examine the books of the company, but he was never permitted to do this, and so he brought the matter into court, Judge Reppert holding that he had the right to make this examination to determine whether the consideration was fair and reasonable and to gain certain information, as to payment of debts, bills receivable, and certain other assets of the two corporations in which he was a stockholder."

Their idea is to get people of Connellsville, South Connellsville, Dunbar and Dunbar township together for a big parade, the only purpose of which would be to show the county authorities that the taxpayers of this end of the county are united for this important improvement. No time has been set, but it will likely be held at a time when it will be most effective in creating sentiment for the bridge."

Inspection of Feet Discloses 375 Corns in the Tenth Regiment and 36 Cases of Flat Feet; Record is Regarded as Exceptionally Good.

By O. R. Harwick, Staff Correspondent.
CAMP STEWART, EL PASO, Aug. 25.—Many of the officers are bringing their wives to El Paso. Some of them are reported to have said they have received assurance that they will remain on the border until spring and they are making arrangements accordingly. This is not a very cheerful outlook for the boys here."

Colonel Coulter is reported to have said he would not sign the papers of any college students so long as there are any kept here who have dependents at home. As it is necessary for his signature there is little likelihood of any college students being sent home for some time yet. The applications of those with dependents are still coming in, however, and are receiving attention although none has been granted in the Tenth as yet. Captain Joseph Herwick has heard nothing from his resignation yet, but expects its acceptance within the next week."

The entire Seventh Division of Pennsylvania troops is in the midst of inspection of feet today. Every man is to have his feet inspected. The inspection is under the direction of regular army medical officers and the object is to note for correction any defects in the feet of the soldiers. There are special exercises for the different defects and even broken arches can be straightened by these exercises."

The inspection of the Tenth was held in the regimental hospital and began at 8 o'clock this morning. Twenty clerks were employed and things were rushed through and every man in the regiment had been put through at 3:30 this afternoon. There were 1672 feet inspected and measured for shoe sizes."

The men first stood upon a measuring block and their feet measured for the correct sizes in marching shoes, which are slightly larger than those of civilian life to allow for slight swelling in marching. They were next directed to a man with a board on which was a heavy piece of paper, under which were two sheets of paper, one yellow and one white, under carbon paper, and a drawing of the feet made, showing all defects. These sheets were turned over to the clerks who marked the defects and made two records of the feet of each man, which are placed on file, one copy being retained by the company commander and the other being sent to Washington to complete the true record of the man there. Clerks were employed to tabulate the records and when the last man was finished it required only a few minutes to total the records and the work was completed. The record of the Tenth was exceptionally good in regard to feet. There were 375 corns and 36 cases of flat feet. One of the officers said in one of the regiments he had inspected there were more corns than there were men, some of them having as high as six or seven. The inspection was just a little late for us as the Tenth has all been issued shoes for the first six months."

The Tenth Regiment holds its weekly regimental review today and tomorrow morning the entire Seventh Division goes out for review at 7:30 o'clock. This is the first division review since the boys left home and promises to be a big affair. It is to be held on the mesa north of camp, and there is plenty of room for the maneuver and it ought to be a great event for the Pennsylvania boys."

The Pennsylvania entertainers gave a performance last night at Fort Bliss for the benefit of the patients in the base hospital there. There were over 400 convalescent patients out to enjoy the affair and the balance received much benefit from their coats in the hospital building. They have a stage erected and a seating capacity for about 500 about the stage. Major Joe Thompson had his entertainers there with the Tenth Regiment band and Danny Nirella was also present with the Eighth Cavalry band, formerly the Fourteenth Regiment band. There were several hundred visitors from El Paso present and everybody greatly enjoyed the event. The Tenth entertainers went down to the fort in the big Packard truck, and on the return trip they had considerable trouble keeping on the road as the night was dark and lights on the truck are very poor. The boys got some severe jolting before they got home, but all enjoyed the trip."

The payrolls have come back and after the big review the boys will be

STATE IS TO BUILD ROAD
TO PENNSVILLE THIS YEAR; WILL ASK BIDS IN FEW DAYS

The State Highway Department expects to build the Stone Bridge-Pennsville road this year. Information to this effect comes from a source which is regarded as reliable. It is said that bids for the construction of the road will be asked in a few days and the contract awarded in time for the road to be built this fall."

The news will be welcome to all travelers who use the thoroughfare. With the Pennsville road virtually graded to Iron Bridge and certain to be completed before winter sets in the work to be done by the state means that there will be an improved road to Pittsburg this year. Unless the stretch of state road to Pennsville is built the Iron Bridge-Pennsville road will be of little use during the winter, as in rough weather there is so much hauling over the state road as to make it almost impassable."

Motorists and others who travel over the main road past the Stone Bridge have long urged its improvement as a matter of justice. It is a part of the shortest route connecting the National Pike with the Lincoln Highway. With the Uniontown road improved, the work of the state will give a solid stretch of paved road from Uniontown to Greensburg."

If the road is built much of the credit will be due H. M. Keplart, chief clerk of the State Senate and candidate for State Treasurer. Mr. Keplart brought State Highway Commissioner F. D. Black to Connellsville some after his appointment and showed him just what the state ought to do for this section. Commissioner Black was told that not a road in the state was more important to travelers than this one as it is on the main route from West Virginia into Pittsburg, as well as an important connecting link between two trunk highways. Mr. Keplart has since seen to it that Commissioner Black did not forget his visit, and indications are that the fight has been won."

Easy Way to Get Rid of Itching

Don't worry any more about that itching skin trouble. Just get a jar of resinol ointment and a cake of resinol soap at any drug store. With the resinol soap and warm water baths the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is soft. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the resinol ointment, and cover with a light bandage. If necessary to protect the clothing, this should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again.

Choosing Your Shampoo Soap

If you select a soap that contains nothing, healing properties like the resinol balance in resinol soap, you are not likely to have trouble with dandruff, loss of hair or itching scalp. Ideal for the youngsters' heads.

PAPER SHORTAGE WILL NOT AFFECT THE SCHOOLS HERE

All Supplies for the Term Have Already Been Delivered.

DUNBAR TOWNSHIP SUPPLIED

In Some Districts It May Be Necessary to Curtail Consumption; Prices are Materially Higher Than a Year Ago; Johnstown Faces a Shortage.

Connellsville public schools will not have to go back to the old fashioned state and pencil because of the scarcity of paper, as is the case in many other districts of the state. All supplies for the 1916 term have arrived except one box, it was stated today. This shipment consists largely of tablets and pads, but even if it is delayed the schools will still have enough to run them for a long time. Higher prices were paid by the district this year for paper and other writing and drawing materials. At the time contracts were let the manufacturers and jobbers attributed this advance to the scarcity of the component materials, chiefly those that go to make up paper. In the last few months there has been an actual famine in paper and it has been found impossible to make deliveries to some schools. In Johnstown slates and pencils will be used as substitutes for paper, it having been found impossible to purchase paper pads. Only enough paper for examinations will be available there.

"R. K. Smith, supervising principal of the Dunbar township schools, said this morning that the paper shortage would not affect his district, since supplies had been bought last May. Mr. Smith said that all the schools in the township were well equipped, better equipped, in fact, than they have ever before. The paper shortage was anticipated, and Mr. Smith recommended to the school board the early purchase of tablets and other supplies. Even then the township was forced to pay prices 50 percent higher than ever before. "When it is considered that from four to five tablets are used by each pupil each term, it can be seen that a large school district will use many tons of paper. Canada has prohibited all exportation of wood pulp for the making of paper and the paper required by newspapers and magazines throughout the country is using up practically all the supply.

They have been anxiously awaiting the event since August 5, which was supposed to have been pay day. "Pay day tomorrow" has become a by-word with the boys and they can scarcely believe that their dreams are to be realized. There will be some big treats Sunday. Much of the money will be sent home to dependent relatives.

The horses for the Tenth Regiment have been received and are being broken in at the carol. The boys had a great time bringing the horses out from the stockyard in El Paso. They started with them at dinner time and some of them had not yet got in at dark. All the officers of the medical department have gotten horses as well as the four sergeants. Some riders are being developed in the hospital corps. The pack mule is becoming somewhat tamer, but nobody has yet attempted to put a pack on her back.

Major Joe Thompson of the first battalion of the Tenth, left this morning for Philadelphia on a 15-day furlough on business. Major Thompson will be greatly missed as he is the most popular man in the Tenth.

German's Invent One Combining Paper
and Cotton.

By Associated Press.
COPENHAGEN, Aug. 29.—A new German textile in which paper is spun with about 20 per cent of cotton is being exhibited here.

Unspun cotton in the form of down is glued to one side of endless rolls of paper and then spun into narrow bands, which are spun with the cotton side outward.

Danish experts were shown paper underclothing, jersey, sheets, handkerchiefs and house blankets, but the cost of production of these articles is said to be too high to allow of its competi-

PRESIDENT ASKS CONGRESS TO ACT IN STRIKE CRISIS

of the executive of the power in case of military necessity to take control of such portions and such rolling stock of the railways of the country as may be required for military use, and to operate them for military purposes, with authority to draft into the military service of the United States such train crews and administrative officials as the circumstances require for their safe and efficient use.

"This last suggestion I make because we cannot in any circumstances suffer the nation to be hampered in the essential matters of national defense. At the present moment circumstances render this duty particularly obvious. Against the entire military force of the nation is stationed upon the Mexican border to guard our territory against hostile raids. It must be supplied and steadily supplied with whatever it needs for its maintenance and efficiency. If it would be necessary for purposes of national defense to transfer any portion of it on short notice to some other part of the country for reasons now unforeseen, ample means of transportation must be available, and available without delay. The power conferred in this matter should be carefully and explicitly limited to cases of military necessity, but in all such cases it should be clear and ample.

"There is one other thing we should do if we are true champions of arbitration. We should make all arbitral awards and judgments by record of a court of law in order that their interpretation and enforcement may lie not with one of the parties to the arbitration, but with an impartial and authoritative tribunal.

"These things I urge upon you, not in haste or merely as a means of meeting a present emergency, but as permanent and necessary additions to the law of the land; suggested, indeed, by circumstances we had hoped never to see, but imperative as well as just if such emergencies are to be prevented in the future.

"I feel that no extended argument is needed to commend them to your favorable consideration. They demonstrate themselves. The time and the occasion only give emphasis to their importance. We need them now, and shall continue to need them."

Ever tag along in the wake of a smoke-sputtering, gas-coughing car or truck that had you sputtering and coughing in turn? Yes, we all have. And more than once we could have been arrested for what we thought of the driver in the car ahead. With careful driving and proper lubrication, cars should not smoke—with the emphasis on "proper lubrication."

Atlantic Polarine is "proper lubrication" for eight out of ten cars. It is the famous year-round oil that is exactly right under all driving conditions.

In all alternative cases, one of the other three principal motor oils—Atlantic "Light," "Medium" or "Heavy"—is the one to use.

Here is a group of four motor oils produced by the oldest and largest manufacturers of lubricating oils in the entire world.

The group is a result of patient research and experimentation conducted in a manner that a plant of smaller size and equipment could not have attempted. Motor experts and oil specialists seriously recommend these oils as the correct lubricants for YOU.

In actual tests it has been demonstrated that a properly lubricated car will often yield as much as five more miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Ask your garageman which of these four oils is best suited to your particular car, then buy that oil—and use it.

Read up on this subject. We have published a handsome and comprehensive book about lubrication. It is free. Ask your garage for it. If they cannot supply you drop us a postal and the book will be sent you without charge.

Fans Roasted Smith, Now They Praise Him

"I don't know a ball game from a circus!" Members of the Cleveland avil chorus, all agree, were singing this ditty last fall, noting the immediate return of Elmer Smith to the sticks. "Smittie" didn't impress those cash customers who expect a bushier to horn into exclusive company and immediately develop a penchant for fence breaking. He could hit pretty fair, but he was a mediocre outfielder.

Did Lee Fohl send the youngster back for further seasoning? He did not. Smittie studied, mastered his fence ways and made good.

Any young man who packs this punch doesn't belong in Waterbury, where the Cleveland fans would have consigned him.

Smith is one-half of the Cleveland right field. He breaks into the lineup and in the clean hitting position when right handed pitchers oppose the Indians. His clotting percentage was compiled against the best slab artists in the league, for every club has been putting on extra speed while trying to throw the suddenly refreshed Ohioans. When southpaws grace the peak Smith warms the bench, Bob Roth going to right field.

At the Theatres.

SOISON THEATRE.

THE RED FEATHER production, "The Madcap," will be shown at the Soison Theatre today with Flora Parker and Richard Sterling. It is a realistic adaptation of the story by the famous American author and artist, George Gibbs. Flora Farbanks is introduced as a rich girl who has been unable to find happiness. She becomes acquainted with a philosophic artist and in the summer time these two go as vagabonds through France. The artist is loved by a Countess, who spiteful toward Flora, publicly misinterprets the harmless trip of the two; then the scene shifts to New York. Flora disappears out of shame. The artist makes the truth known and the Countess is justly ostracised. The lovers become united and everything turns out alright.

"His Temper-Mental Mother-in-law," a two reel L-KO comedy with Billie Ritchie. Poor little Billie Ritchie! In every picture they abuse and mistreat him so that at last he rebels and runs wild. With the aid of a big black brute of an engine he liberally breaks up his nappy home to be revenged on mother. He was revenged, but see this roaring comedy today.

"The Tail of the Law," an under-world drama with Agnes Vernon. "Amplified Weekly No. 3" contains many interesting scenes. Tomorrow the Blubert feature "Love's Lure," featuring Harry Carey and Olive Golden. Eight cowboys, flung from the western range, are transported to New York and established in a Fifth Avenue mansion. After spending their lives on the open prairies they are brought suddenly to conform to the usages of good society. The abrupt transition and the immensely humorous results are to be shown in this photoplay. Coincidentally with the comedy element in the picture-drawn there is an intensely engaging love story, to increase the general interest in the story, and Olive Fuller Golden is the handsome heroine.

THE PARAMOUNT. "THE EVIL THEREOF"—Five part adaptation of the drama by Channing Pollock and Renold Wolf, with Frank Burke in the leading role, and Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance," are today's features. The object of "The Evil Thereof," is to show the widely divergent uses to which money may be put. There is shown the contrast in which the spendthrift squanders his money on those who share his orgies and the scant consideration he bestows upon the wife of a laborer who is fatally injured by his machine. Two characters stand out in the story. Frank Loane is seen as the wealthy man who is in business not because he needs the money but because he believes it to be expedient to get away from the possibility of the charge of being the "idle rich." The broker is altogether despicable, a libertine without saving grace unless it be the lavish manner in which he throws money, one hundred dollar bills, to his women friends. Grace Valentine, a nursemaid, who is seduced by the broker and disowned by her father; afterwards has no interest in life; her subjugation is complete; there is nothing for her to do but heed the beck and call of the broker. It is a strangely contrasted pair. The two roles are splendidly played. The smooth villainy of the one is matched by the despair of the other. The story is a succession of tragedies of the soul and also of the blood. The culmination is near the close of the bandit where the broker entertains seven of his associates. The recording manureit repentant and rebellious overcome by shame plunges a carving knife into the breast of the host. Tomorrow DeWolf Hopper and Bonnie Lane will be seen in "Stranded," a Triangle Fine Arts production in five acts. Thursday Fran-

JACOB J. SWANK PRAISES TANLAC MASTER REMEDY

Retired Business Man Feels It a Duty to Make Facts Known.

Jacob J. Swank, a retired business man, of 625 Napoleon St., Johnstown, Pa., said recently:

"I am a conservative man, and have especially been skeptical regarding endorsements of medicines of any character, although I have used many of them in attempts to obtain real relief from catarrh of the head and throat and stomach trouble."

"I believe I had used almost everything imaginable before I took Tanlac. At night, when I slept, which was poorly, I evidently swallowed accumulations of mucus, as I invariably awakened in the morning choked and nauseated. That is the way I judge that my stomach became affected."

"My hearing became impaired and the itching in my ears became almost unbearable, and there were roaring noises also. I had a most unpleasant taste in my mouth and scarcely any appetite."

"My condition was so distressing that I had almost determined to visit a dry, salt climate to gain relief. I watched the introduction of Tanlac carefully and I finally decided, if no many men and women, of evidently sound sense used the medicine and said they were benefited, it would be worth my while to try it, although I really had no faith in it at the time."

"I was surprised, however, I began to improve rapidly under the Tanlac treatment. My whole system is now right, the accumulations in my nose and throat have disappeared, my hearing has improved, I eat better, my sleep is restful and I feel better every way. I now consider myself physically able to throw off any other symptoms."

"I am a well man and I propose to tell others of the good Tanlac has done me. I feel it is my duty to do so."

Tanlac, the Master Medicine that masters when everything else fails, is sold here by A. A. Clark, where it can now be had.—Adv.

els N. Bushman and Beverly Bayne will be featured in "The Wall Between."

You will find, in all probability, an accumulation of tartar on the enamel and bits of food deposit hiding between the crevices. YOUR DENTIFRICE does not FULLY CLEAN! Loss of teeth is caused usually by one of two conditions—Pyorrhea or decay, both of which develop, as a rule, only in the mouth where germ-laden tartar is present.

SENRECO, the recently discovered formula of a dental specialist, is two-fold in its action. First, it REALLY CLEANS, embodying specially prepared soluble granules unusually effective in cleaning away food deposits. Second, it is particularly destructive to the germ of Pyorrhea. Yet it is perfectly safe, containing neither injurious chemicals nor hard grit.

Avoid Pyorrhea and decay. Get Senreco from your dealer today. In large tubes, 25c. Send 4c to Senreco, 304 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, for liberal-sized trial package.

The LONE STAR RANGER

A ROMANCE OF THE BORDER

By ZANE GREY

AUTHOR OF
"THE LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS"
"RIDERS OF THE PURPLE SAGE", ETC.

CHAPTER XL

Tomorrow she would be gone among good, kind people with a possibility of finding her relatives. He thanked God for that; nevertheless, he felt a pang.

About the middle of the afternoon
Jennie rode. To her could a man and after a ride sat beside the little fire. Sometimes when her eyes were on him she did not seem to be thinking of her freedom or her future.

"This time tomorrow you'll be in Shelbyville," he said.

"Where will you be?" she asked.

"Me? Oh, I'll be in the tracks for some time on a piece," he replied.

"The old shanty?"

"I've been brought up in Texas. I remember what a hard life the men of my family had. But poor as they were, they had a roof over their heads,
a hearth with a fire, a warm bed—somebody to love them. And you, Dunne—oh, my lord! What must your life be? You must ride and ride and watch eternally."

She ended with a sob and dropped her head on her knees. Dunne was amazed, deeply touched.

"My girl, thank you for that thought of me," he said with a tremor in his voice. "You don't know how much that means to me."

She raised her face and it was tear-stained, eloquent, beautiful.

"I've heard tell—the best of men go to the bad out there. You won't be able to keep your head. I know—
I know you won't. I—I—I may never see you again—after to-day. I'll never forget you. I'll pray for you and I'll never give up trying to do something. Don't despair.
It's never too late. It was my hope that kept me alive—but there at Shelbyville—before you came—I was only a poor weak girl. But if I could hope —no, can you, still away from men.
He is a law officer. Fight for your life.
Stick out your back—and maybe—
some day—"

Then she lost her voice. Dunne clapped her hand and with feeling as deep as hers promised to remember her words. In her despair for him she had spoken wisdom—pointed out the only course.

Dunne's vigilance, momentarily broken by emotion, had no sooner resettled itself than he discovered the big horse, the one Jennie rode, had broken his halter and gone off. The soft wet earth had loosened the sound of his hoofs. His tracks were plain in the mud.

Dunne did not want to leave Jennie alone in the cabin so near the road.
So he put her on his horse and made her follow. The rain had covered the time being, though, evidently the storm was not yet over. The tracks led up a wash to a wide flat where mesquite, prickly pear, and thorn-bush grew so thickly that Jennie could not ride into it. He could not expect her to scramble quickly through that brake on foot. Therefore he decided to risk leaving her at the edge of the thicket and go in alone.

As he went in a sound startled him.
Was it the breaking of a branch he had stepped on or the rustle of leaves?
He heard the impatient pound of his horse's hoofs. Then all was quiet.
Still he listened, not wholly satisfied.
He was never satisfied in regard to safety; he knew too well that there never could be safety for him in this country.

Certainly he was now that some kind of danger threatened.

Suddenly there came an unmistakable thump of horse's hoofs off somewhere to the east. Then a scream rent the air. It ended abruptly. Dunne leaped forward, tore his way through the thorny brake. He heard Jennie cry again—an appealing call quickly hushed. It seemed more to his right, and he plunged that way. He burst into a glade where a smoldering fire and ground covered with footprints and tracks showed that campers had lately been. Rushing across this, he broke his passage out to the open.
But he was too late. His horse had disappeared. Jennie was gone. There were no riders in sight. There was no sound. There was a heavy trail of horses going north. Jennie had been carried off—probably by outlaws.
Dunne realized that pursuit was out of the question—that Jennie was lost.

Wolf!"

A group of spectators trooped out of the shadows of dusk and, gathering round him, escorted him to his bed.

Every one of his victims, singly and collectively, returned to him for ever.
It seemed, in cold, passionless, accusing domination. They did not accuse

For Hours He Did That, Dreaming.

him of dishonor or cowardice or brutality or murder; they only accused him of death. It was as if they knew more than when they were alive, had learned that life was a divine mysterious gift not to be taken. They thronged about him with their voiceless clamoring drifted around him with their fading eyes.

After nearly six months in the Nueces gorge the loneliness and inaction of his life drove Dunne out upon the trails seeking anything rather than to hide longer alone, a prey to the scourge of his thoughts. The moment he rode into sight of men a remarkable transformation occurred in him. A strange warmth stirred in him
—a longing to see the faces of people, to hear their voices—a pleasurable emotion and strange. But it was only a precursor of his old bitter, sleepless, and eternal vigilance.

Mercer was the first village he rode into. He had many friends there.
Mercer claimed to owe Dunne a debt.
On the outskirts of the village there was a grave overgrown by brush so that the red-lettered post which marked it was scarcely visible to Dunne as he rode by. He had never read the inscription. But he thought now of Harlin. For many years Harlin had harassed the stockmen and ranchers in and around Mercer. On an evil day for him he or his outlaws had beaten and robbed a man who once succeeded Dunne when some in need, Dunne met Harlin in the little plaza of the village, called him every name known to border men, taunted him to draw, and killed him in the act.

Dunne went to the house of one Jones, a Texan who had known his father, and there he was warmly received. The feel of an honest hand, the voice of a friend, the prattle of children who were not afraid of him or his gun, good wholesome food, and change of clothes—these things for the time being made a changed man of Dunne. To be sure, he did not often speak. The price of his head and the weight of his burden made him silent.
But eagerly he drank in all the news that was told him. In the years of his absence from home he had never heard a word about his mother or uncle.
Those who were his real friends on the border would have been the last to make inquiries, to write or receive letters that might give a clue to Dunne's whereabouts.

Dunne remained all day with this hospitable Jones, and as twilight fell was loath to go and yielded to a pressing invitation to remain overnight. It was seldom indeed that Dunne slept under a roof. Early in the evening, while Dunne sat on the porch with two awed and hero-worshipping sons of the house, Jones returned from a quick visit down to the postoffice. Summarily he sent the boys off. He labored under intense excitement.

"Dunne, there's a gang in town," he whispered. "It's all over town, too, that you're here. You rode in long after sunset. Lots of people saw you. I don't believe there's a man or boy that didn't see you. But the women might. They gossip, and these rumors are handsome fellows—devils with the women."

LIVESTOCK JUDGING CONTEST A BIG END OF THE DAWSON FAIR

County Farm Agent Dougherty is Working on the Program.

TWO CLASSES ARE OUTLINED

There will be prizes for those between 16 and 20, and other awards for youngsters from 10 to 16; Free Admission to Fair for the Entrants.

The second annual boys' and girls' livestock and judging contest which will be held at the Fayette County Fair, Dawson, September 13, promises to be larger and of more importance than the one last year in which 110 boys and girls between the ages of ten and eighteen competed for prizes made up largely of pure bred livestock. The contest will be supervised by P. E. Dougherty, of the Fayette County Farm Bureau, assisted by some livestock men from the Pennsylvania State College.

The contest this year will differ somewhat from the contest last year in that the contestants will be divided into two classes. Class A constituting those between the ages of ten to sixteen and Class B, those between 16 and 20—in case it is impossible for the children between 10-16 to attend the fair due to the epidemic of infantile paralysis, Class B will be conducted as proposed.

Five premiums will be offered in each class. The first premium for each class being a free trip to State College, Pa., for Farmers' Week, Dec. 27 to Jan. 3. Last year 175 boys and girls from Pennsylvania who won premiums over the state in corn growing contests and stock judging contests were assembled at State College where a special program was provided for the prize takers. The remaining eight prizes will be made up of pure bred animals, using pure bred so that the premium takers will be starting into business with the proper kind of stock.

The contest will take place promptly at 9 o'clock on the morning of September 13—when four rings of stock will be judged with three individuals in each ring. The persons in charge will tell the students what to look for in each class, and give a discussion of each class after they have been judged. The instruction received, regardless of whether a premium is won or not, will well repay the boys and girls of Fayette county for the trip to the fair.

Application blanks have been sent out to many boys and girls, but if you have not received yours, drop a line to Dawson Fair Association, Dawson, by September 9, the day the entries close.

Make applications at once and you will receive a free admission to the fair and special instructions on stock judging.

It is especially desired to have all boys and girls in the county, between the ages of 10 to 20 years, who are interested in livestock, enter the contest in order to compete for one of the premiums.

Refreshed and Invigorated, Vacationists are returning home.

Quite a good many people provided the money for a vacation this summer by making regular deposits in a Savings account with the First National Bank. It's an excellent plan. If you weren't able to take a vacation this year, why not begin to save right now for next? The bank mentioned pays liberal interest. One dollar starts a Savings account.—Adv.

Since 1882 Mr. Ebbert has been in the Canadian gold mining districts, having only visited Connelville once in all that time. He is coming back to civilization soon, however, he says he "wants to see old Connelville once more."

A FARMER carrying an express package from a big mail-order house was accosted by a local dealer.

"Why didn't you buy that bill of goods from me? I could have saved you the express, and besides you would have been patronizing a home store, which helps pay the taxes and builds up this locality."

The farmer looked at the merchant a moment and then said: "Why don't you patronize your home paper and advertise? I read it and didn't know that you had the stuff I have here."
